DILLARD UNIVERSITY

THE CAMPUS SCENE

Dillard University's campus has proven to be one of the most beautiful historically Black University's campuses.

DU 1869

Ex Fide Fortis

In 1869, with support from the American Missionary Association of the Congregational Church (now the United Church of Christ) and the Freedman's Aid Society of the United Methodist Church, Straight University and Normal School were founded. They were subsequently renamed Straight College and New Orleans University, respectively.

Gilbert Academy, a secondary school, was a unit of New Orleans University. Straight College operated a law department from 1874 to 1886. New Orleans University in 1889 opened a medical department , including a school of pharmacy and a school of nursing. The medical department was named Flint Medical College and the affiliated hospital was named Sarah Goodridge Hospital and Nurse Training School. The Medical college was discontinued in 1911, but the hospital, including the nursing school, was continued under the name Flint Goodridge Hospital.

In 1930, New Orleans University and Straight merged to form Dillard University. The trustees of the new university called for the implementation of a coeducational, interracial school, serving a predominantly African American student body adhering to Christian principles and values. The University was named in honor of James Hardy Dillard; a distinguished academician dedicated to educating African Americans.

Miss Dillard's Debut

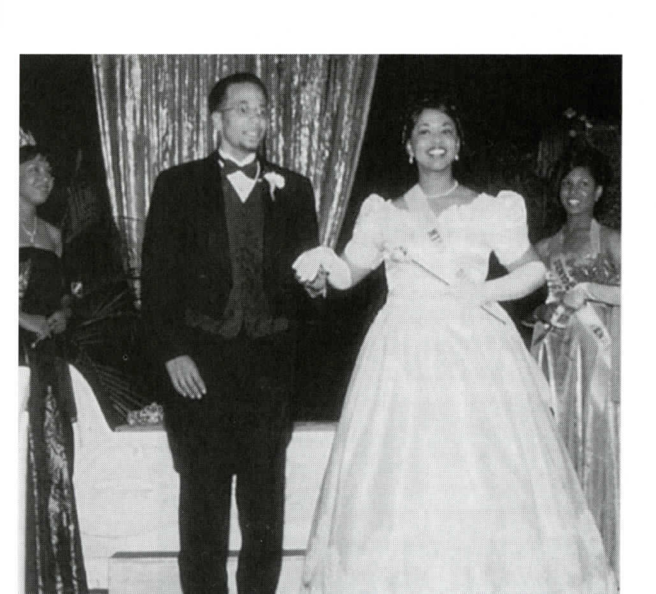

MISS MONICA NOBLE

To the faculty, staff, administrators and student body of Dillard University:

I am esteemed and humbled to reign as your Miss Dillard for the 1999-2000 academic school year. I am honored to serve as an ambassador for Dillard.

Dillard has exceeded my every expectation. I have received the best available education and preparation for a career in the professional world. I have encountered stimulating and nurturing instructors who have guided me along the path of academic excellence. I have experienced life changing events, spiritually, culturally, academically and socially at Dillard. I have made wonderful friends whom I will remember always. And most important, I have been given the opportunity to offer my ideas, talent, and creativeness to the greatest assembly of students ever known to attend a university.

As Miss Dillard, my duties at Dillard will be a challenge, but rewarding challenge. I will continue to stress my 3-C theory of involvement. This includes active participation in on-campus activities, in classes, and in the community. As Dillard prepares for the turn of the century by enhancing her inner and outer beauty, it is my intent to further the pride and love of the gleaming white and spacious green by implementing a campus beauty awareness program. It is also my intent to endure that the students have more opportunity to have visible and active role in the surrounding communities of Dillard. Lastly, it is my intent to assist in implementing quality social and academic events that will benefit the student body as a whole.

Again, I am elated to be the Miss Dillard that will usher Dillard in to the new millennium. I will strive to remain dedicated to the excellence and heritage of Fair Dillard.

Thank You, God Bless you, and God Bless Dillard University.

DU ON THE MOVE

Where is the money going? Visit DU campus and all of the visible signs of constructions and reconstruction will answer that question. Campus improvements have been going on since last year and even before then. DU students face construction workers, caution signs, mud puddles, and pot holes on a daily basis, but because hard work pays off, the inconvenience is definitely well worth it. The new additions or renovations include the addition of the Kabacoff Plaza, lawn furniture on the Avenue of the Oaks, a new computer lab in Dent, new police officers, freshly paved roads, the renovations of Stern Hall, and a tennis court. Work is still being done on Williams Hall, but reconstruction is expected to be finished by next year. All in all, the Dillard family appreciates the finished projects, but certainly anticipates the completion of the current ones.

The newly renovated campus is a clever ploy to boost enrollment.

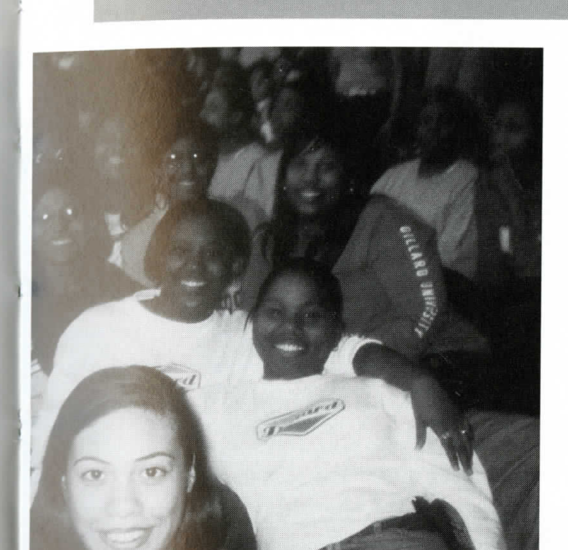

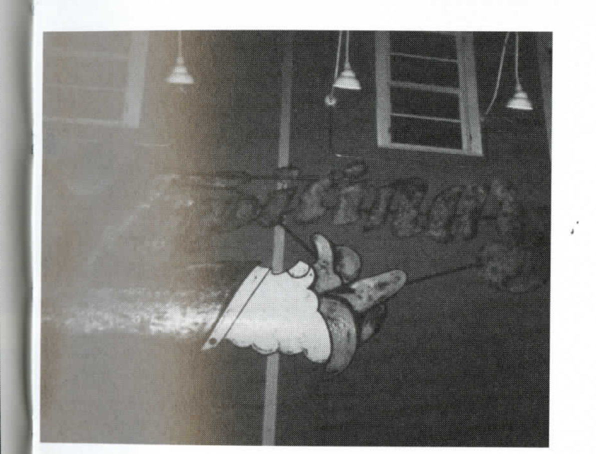

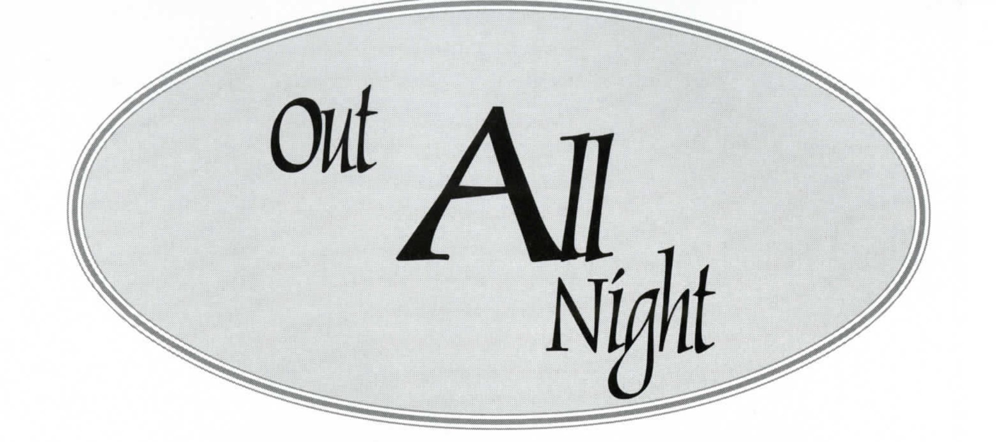

Things To Remember:

New Orleans brings spice to the Dillard University experience.

New Orleans City Magic

Even though most students attend Dillard University to solidify their education, we all must take a break, at some time or another, from our studious activities. New Orleans offers a variety of places to give college students a taste of southern nightlife.

The House of Blues, one of many clubs/restaurants in a nationwide franchise, is one of the most popular scenes for Thursday night partying. Located in the heart of the world re-known French Quarter, the H.O.B., at one time only attracted college students with its upbeat east coast flavor. Today, on any given Thursday night, one is likely to see southern rap stars (and their fans) from the local Cash Money record label because the club has extended its musical genre.

On Friday nights, Whispers is the place to be!

Kenny's Key West, located in Metairie, is a new spot on the club scene. Unbeknownst to many, Key West offers regular beverage specials that are ideal for college students. The atmosphere is often laid back, but an overflow of Dillard students usually gets the party started.

Illusions, formerly Club Whispers 2000, is in the eastern part of the city, and it is the perfect place for a true taste of New Orleans. Illusions, with its "no nonsense" policy, is the only club that offers freshly prepared fried chicken, half-priced exotic drinks, and shows the newest No Limit films all at the same time. The atmosphere can be extremely rowdy, and at times, dangerous.

Sunday nights are now spent at the newest uptown club, The Warehouse. It offers early admission specials and a variety of music provided by the innovative Psycho Ward deejays. The Warehouse has created competition for the former uptown New Orleans Sunday night site, Tipitina's.

For the Dillard University students who are 21 and over, Harrah's Casino is the new entertainment capitol of the South. The largest land based casino is full of around-the-clock excitement and a wall-to-wall buffet including tasty dishes native to the South. Harrah's has lively parades every night, and it is an entertainment magnet to visiting superstars.

When going out, on any night, to any party or club, students must be fully aware of the dangers that may await them. The city never sleeps, and neither does the crime. Choose your destinations and your companions carefully, and if all else fails, there is always an all inclusive, inexpensive, fun-filled trip to the French Quarter!

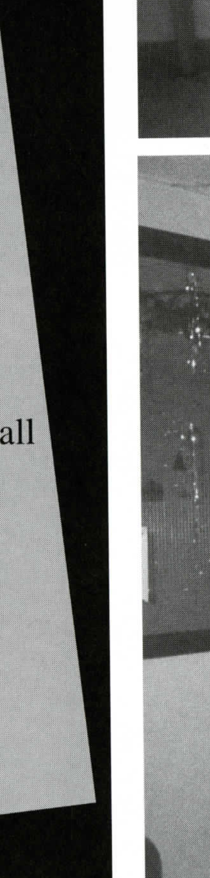

STUDENT LIFE

Candi Nash, sophomore attendant, celebrates the Christmas season with the senior citizens from St. John Birshman. The party was sponsored by the class of 2002. The senior citizens were overwhelmed with gifts and love from the students.

Christmas is never complete without the traditional Christmas tree. This tree was nicely decorated by Takiyah Mitchell, a sophomore from Houston, TX.

Dillard Christmas Holidays

Celebrating On The Oaks

Christmas is a very special time for people around the world and a very special time at Dillard University. When the spirit of giving and seasonal joy are in the air Dillard University students rise to the occasion by performing and putting on special programs for the entire community.

One of the special Christmas pro- grams was thrown by the sophomore class council. The sophomore class had a Christmas entertainment programs for the residents of St.
John's Berchman Manor across the street from Dillard University. The pro- gram consisted of interpretive dance, musical se- lections from sophomore members of the concert choir and a short skit by Giani Clarkson on having the Christmas spirit.

> "Christmas is my favorite time of the year because I love to receive gifts."

The Lawless chapel minis- try gave another one of the special Christmas pro- grams. Reverend Bowman gave an uplifting sermon on making our own Christmas pageant and pre- paring for the Lord to come in each member's life. Also the Praise Danc- ers lifted the Christmas spirit by doing interpretive dance. Dillard University also recognized the African American holiday of Kwanzaa by lighting the candles during the service.

The Christmas Dinner also was full of the joy of the season. The annual Christmas sing-off was full of cheer and friendly competition. The ladies of Delta Sigma Theta did a beautiful rendition of "Come by Here" and the ladies of Alpha Kappa Alpha did a skit and sung with Donnie Hathaway's " This Christmas" In which every participant filled the Kearny Dining hall with the musical magic.

The dorms were also in the spirit of Christmas with the annual Resident Hall decorating contest.

"Camphor Hall never looked as nice as it does when its Christmas time" remarked Tamara Anderson a sophomore form Little Rock, AR.

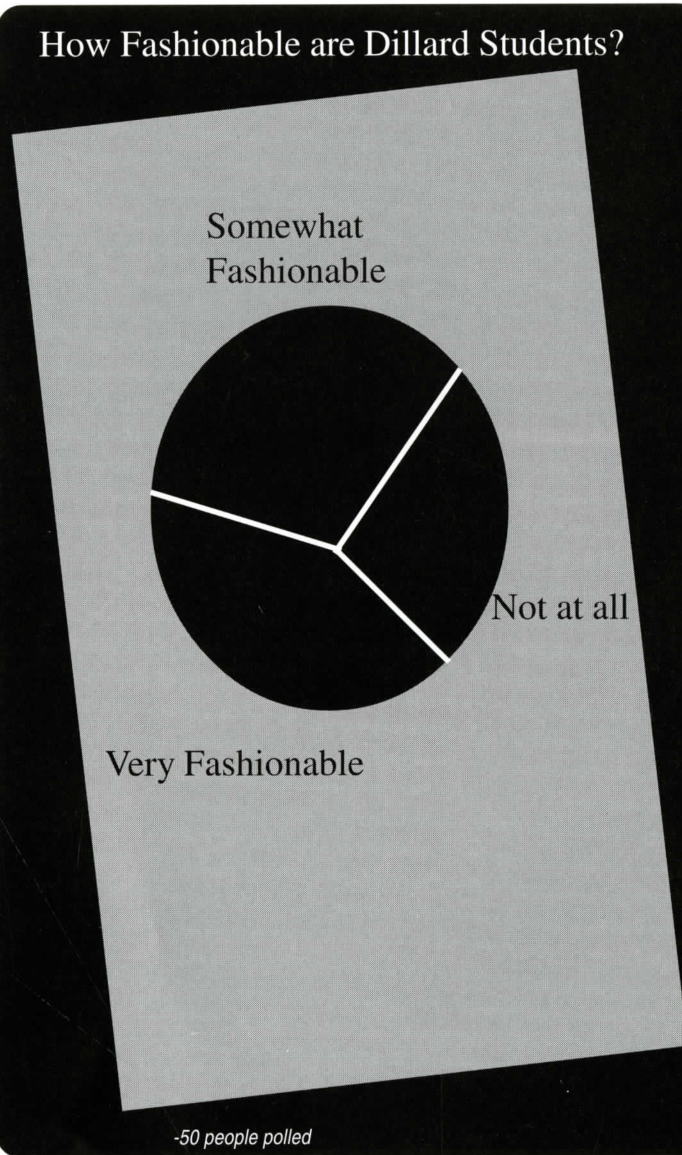

Thus as the semester ends the joy of Christmas and the hopes of a new semester leave with the Dillard students as they return home for the long awaited Christmas

Sophomore Elegance. Yanci Mannery, Candice Reid, Kimberly Cooper and Telekia Grubbs shows how classy the ladies of the Modular Complex are. Watch out men, these fashion divas are out to steal your hearts.

High Class. When it comes to fashion, senior Adrianne Buggs proves she is a step above the rest. She accessorizes with a black & white scarf to add even more "ummph" to her classy outfit. She ought to change her major from English to Fashion Designer.

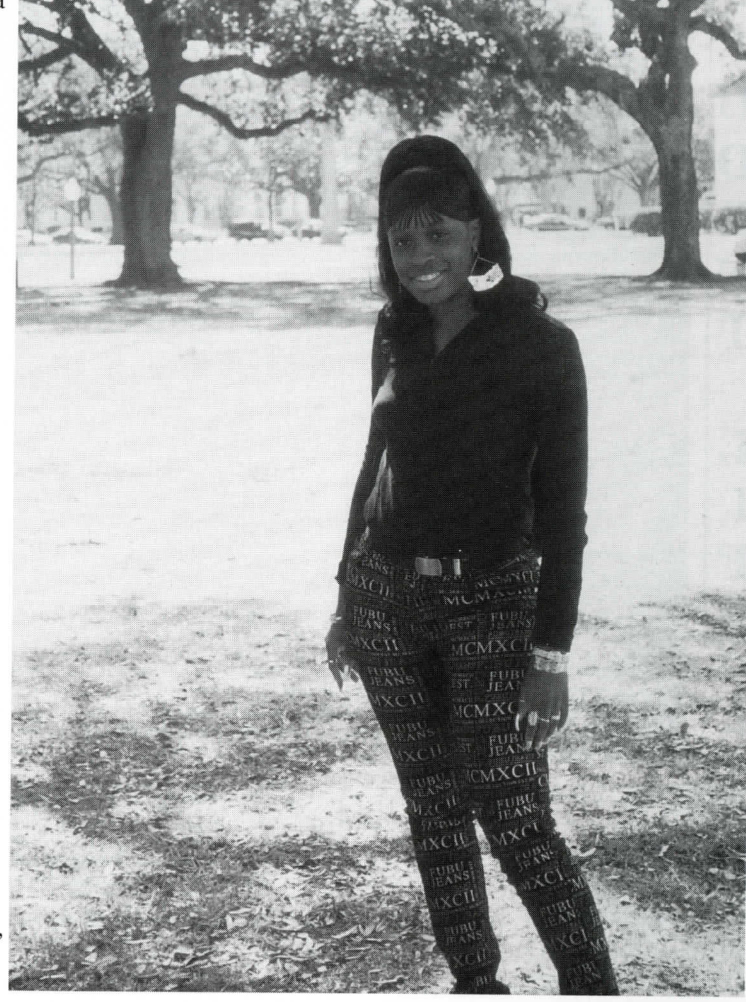

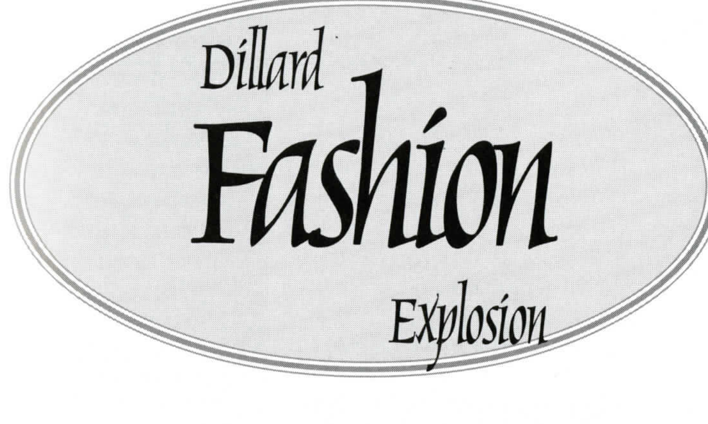

Brrrrr....... It must have really been cold outside because Freshman Marquis Scott sports his black bubble jacket. I wonder if his friends knew how cold it was because they had on short sleeve shirts.

Things to Remember:

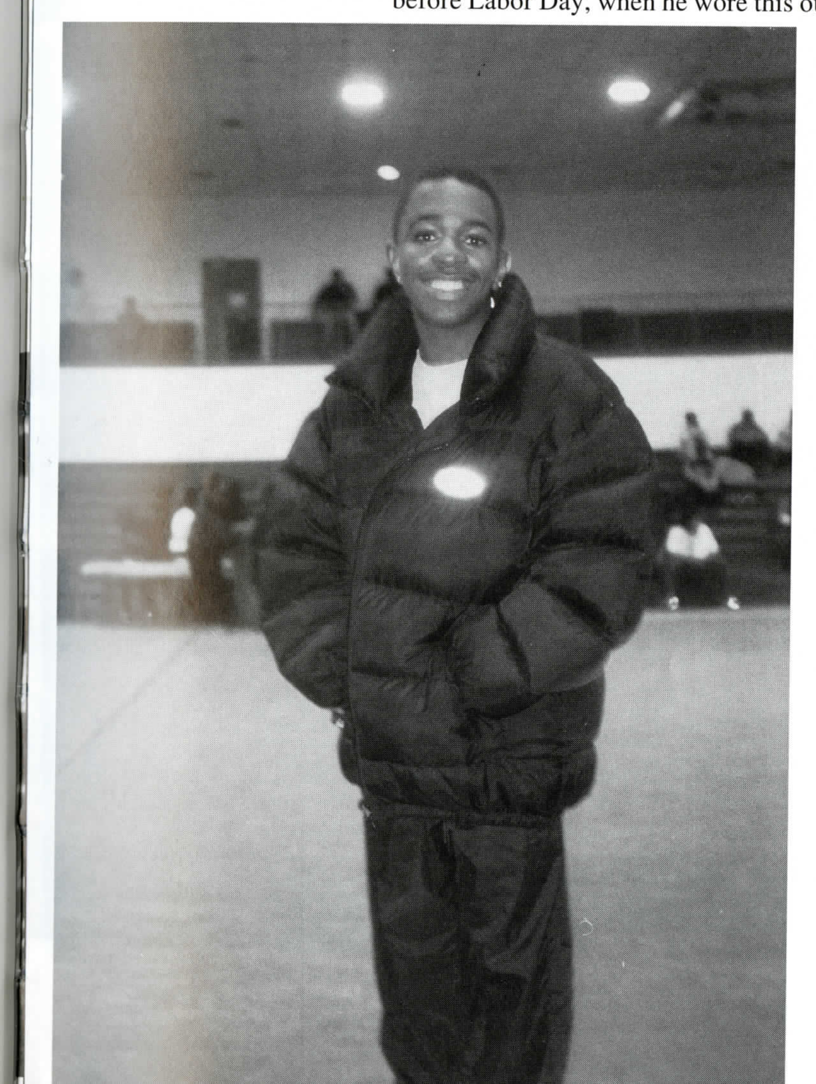

" Halter tops gave almost everyone self confidence."

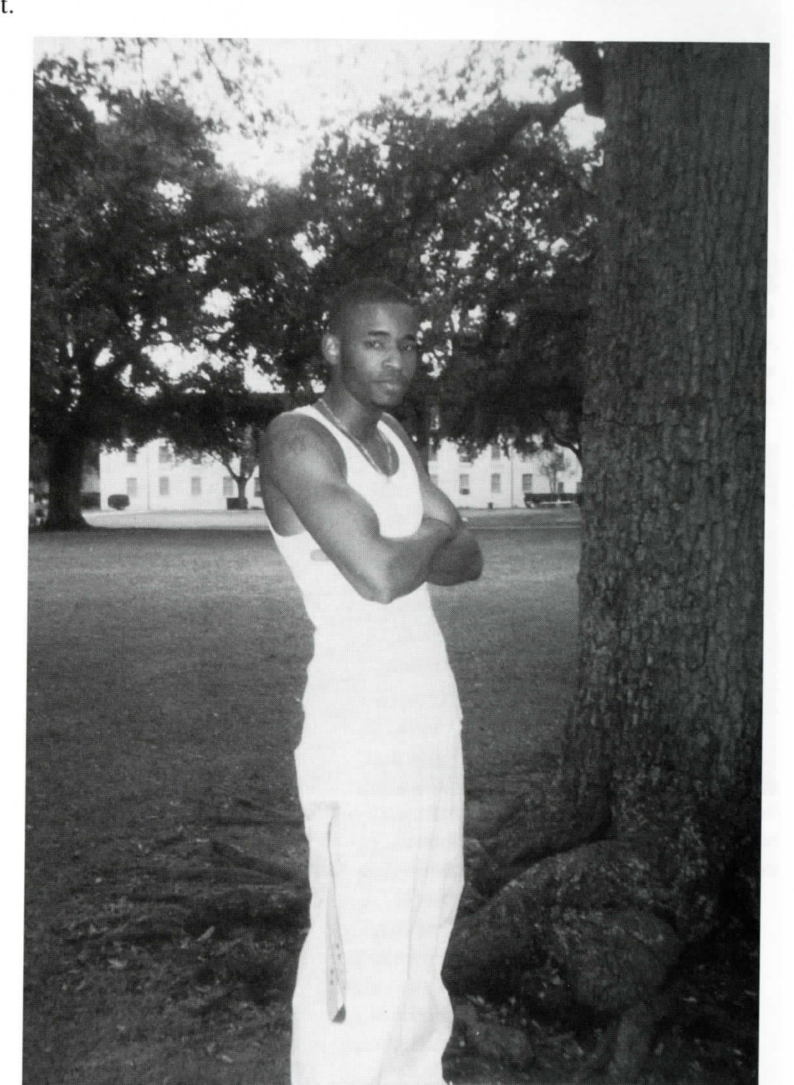

Say Whoadie! This lil' mama shows off her keen fashion sense. She is welcoming everyone to celebrate the Millennium in style.

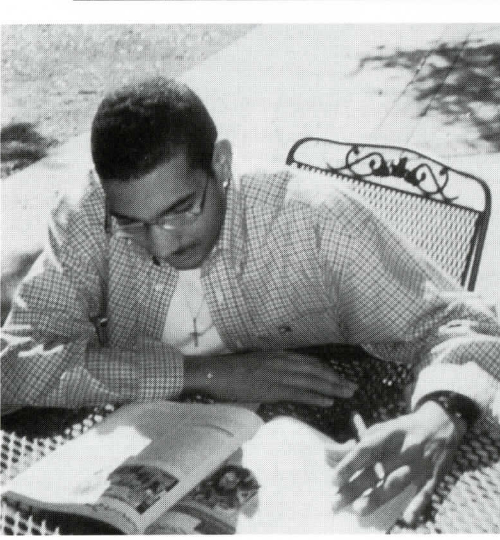

Thugged Out. Who knew that people from Oklahoma could coordinate. Sophomore Jeffrey Jefferson sports a white "wife beater" and white windsuit pants. I hope it was before Labor Day, when he wore this outfit.

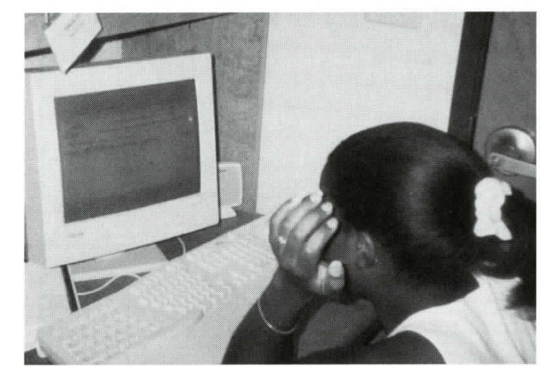

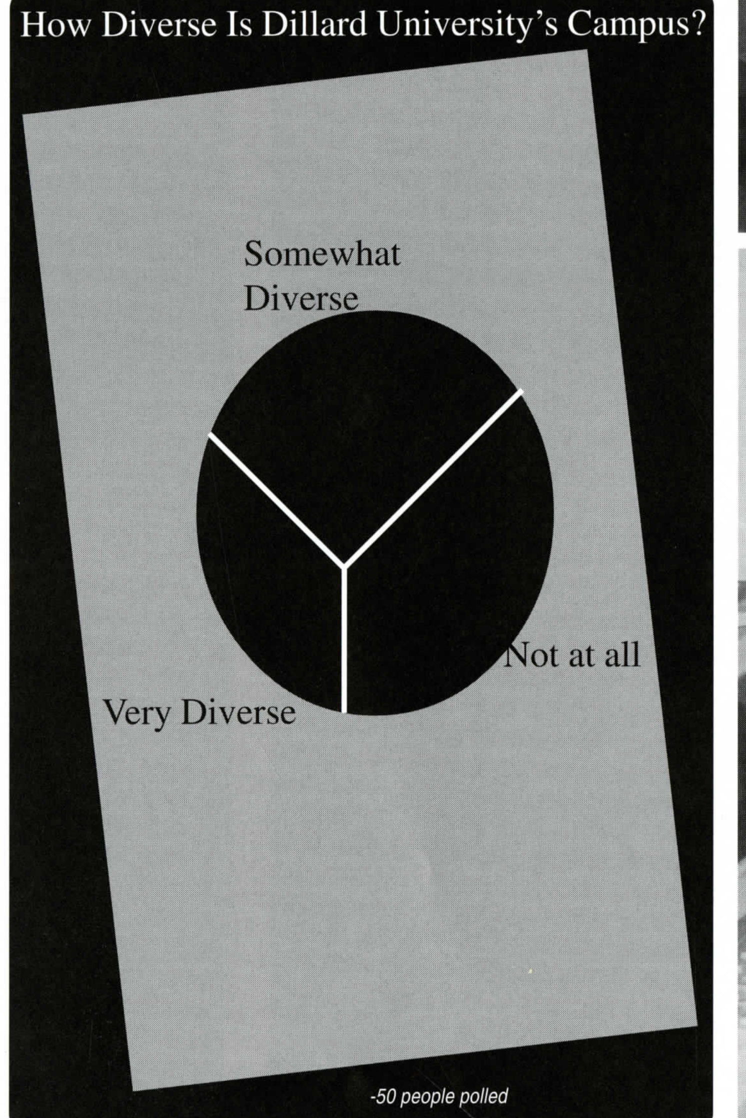

These students take full use of the William W. Alexander library. The library is equipped with some of the best computers on campus. The lab is open Day and Night for students to utilize.

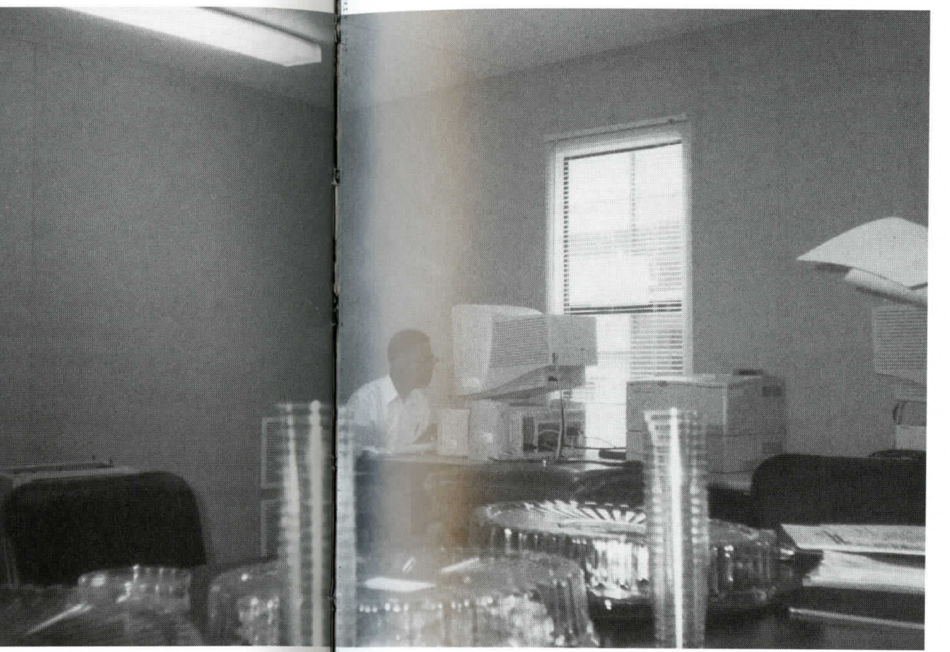

It's not always about computers. Sophomore Eric Brown sits on the yard to reseach his topic for his midterm. Some students find it easier to read books rather than computer screens.

Sophomore Sheronica Simmons patiently waits for the Yahoo website to download to check her email. Access to the internet in the rooms are very convenient for residents.

Things to Remember:

"Don't try to meet your future spouse online"

Computers are not only helpful for students, they also help administration and staff. They use computers to help prepare class rosters and students records.

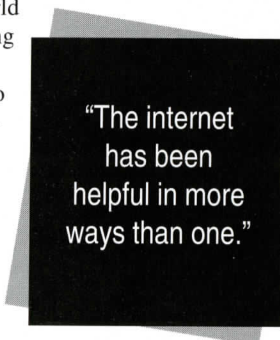

Isaka and Eraka Williams sho the true meaning of sisterhood by lending each other a helping hand. Computers are not always user friendly.

Internet E-Mail Expressway

On-Line At DU

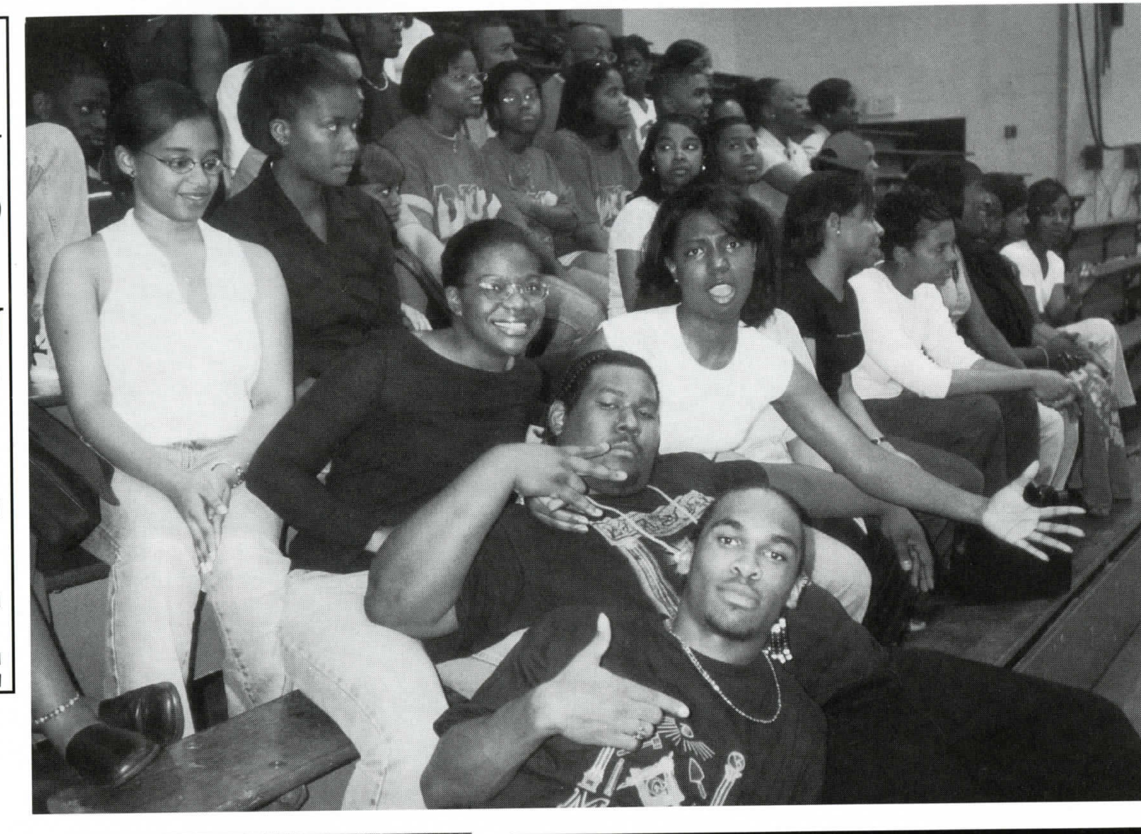

Try to go into any computer lab here on campus and you will be surprised to see them filled with students typing away. What's this new infatuation with computers about? Dillard University has finally caught up with technology by having Internet access in all computer labs. The Internet can be used for research for papers, looking up interesting topics and most of all email. Email or electronic mail is a form of communication over the World Wide Web. Email is rapidly becoming the hottest wave of communication.

With email students no longer have to wait 5-15 days (depending on when the post office decides to put you letters in you box) to receive letters from their friends and love ones. They can now send and receive letters faster and cheaper that regular mail. Email is also a cheap alternative to telephone calls. No calling cards or calling plans are needed to send a friend a message that she may be able to receive in minutes.

To get an email address, go to a domain with free email. Domains like yahoo, hotmail, and college club are popular among students. After finding a domain, fill out a short registration form, pick a catchy screen name and a password and you are ready to start emailing. You may have one or more than one email account to accommodate all your needs. The fun doesn't stop there. Many domains have profile pages in which you fill out your profile and you are matched with up with a person with similar interests. It is a great way to meet people from your hometown, from New Orleans, or a pen pal to chat with on occasion.

To accommodate the growing population here at DU, Internet access will be placed in the dorms once they are remodeled. It has already been placed in the Modular Complex and the students can't get enough. Students say that it is easier to check their email in the comfort of their rooms instead of waiting in long lines in the library or having people constantly asking if they are done. So next time you want to tell someone something important, email him or her, it is simpler than mailing letters and cheaper than calling.

A few students decide to second line for the crowd. Edwina Williams twirl her umbrella while Valandra Johnson looks on withj a grin. Williams displays her talents well.

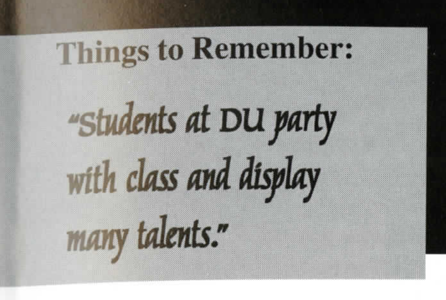

During the lunch hour students get jiggy with the DJ Cheese. They display the latest moves, while staff and other students look on.

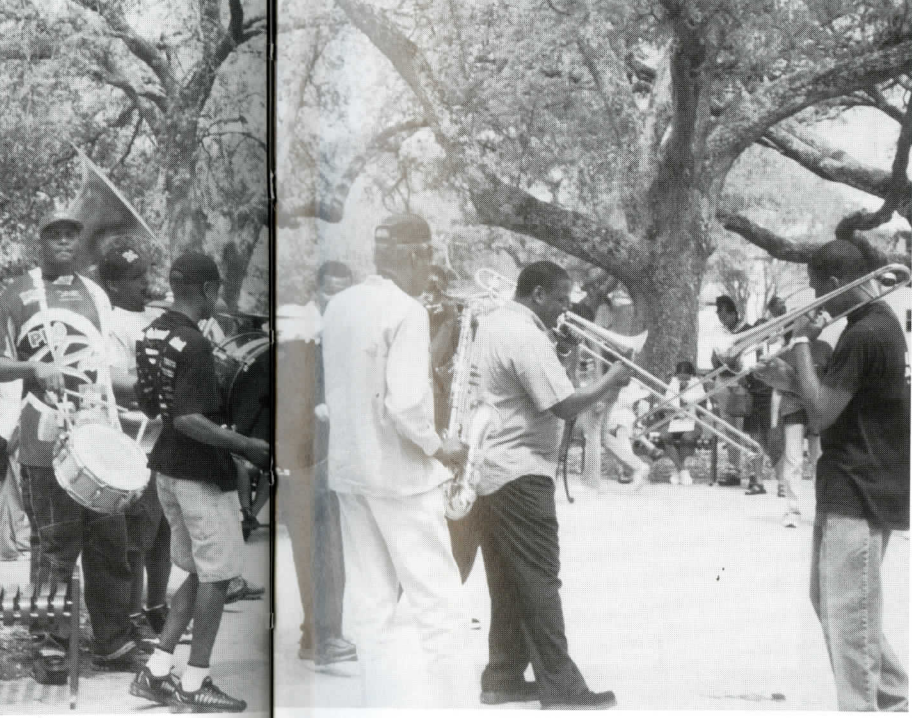

How many students enjoyed themselves at SpringFest?

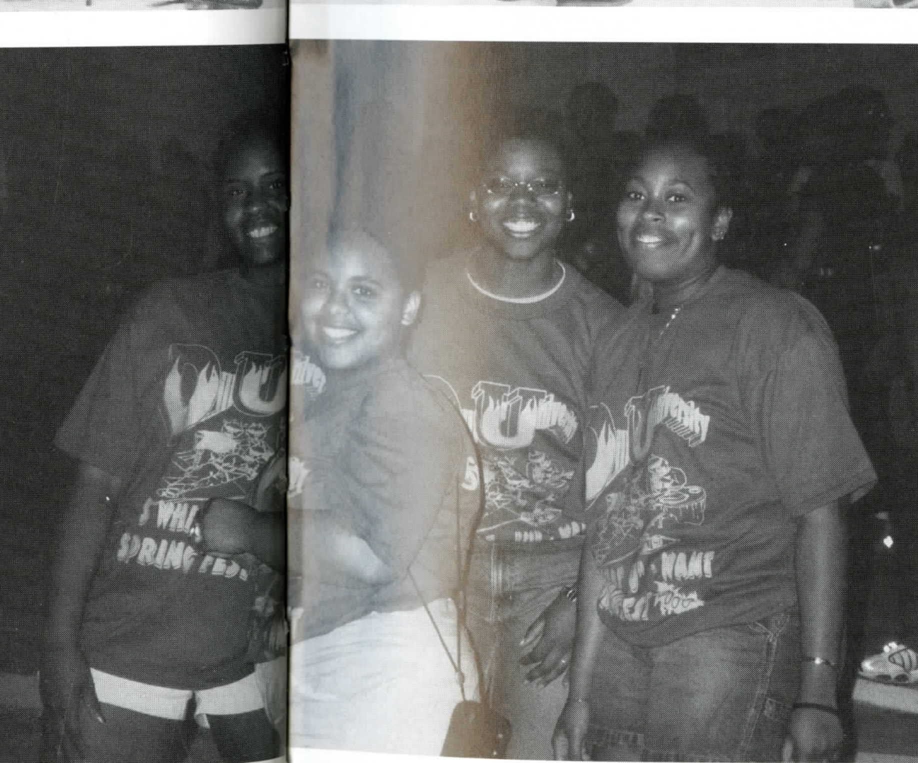

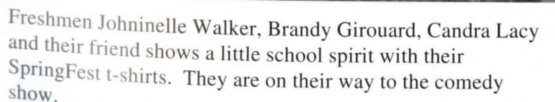

-50 people polled

The band adds the extra pizazz to SpringFest. The students are excited, as they join in with the festivities. Can't you feel the love and harmony in the air.

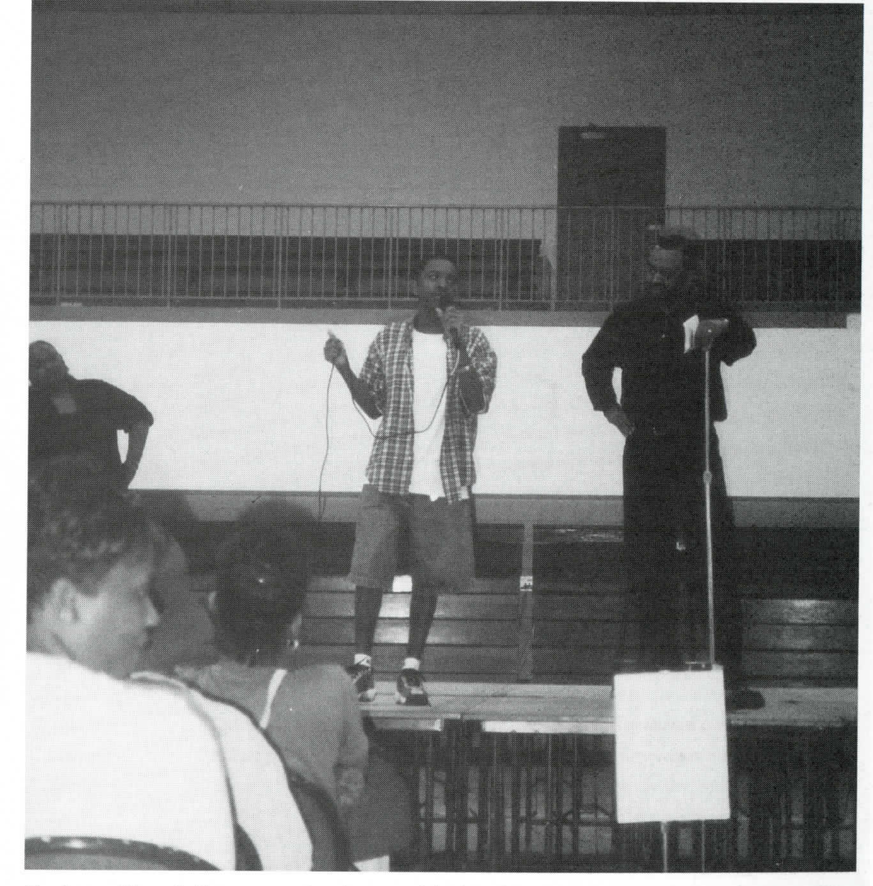

Freshmen Johninelle Walker, Brandy Girouard, Candra Lacy and their friend shows a little school spirit with their SpringFest t-shirts. They are on their way to the comedy show.

This DU student places a new meaning on the second-line dance. He moves down the stairs, toes tapping and fork waving. This students knows what he's doing.

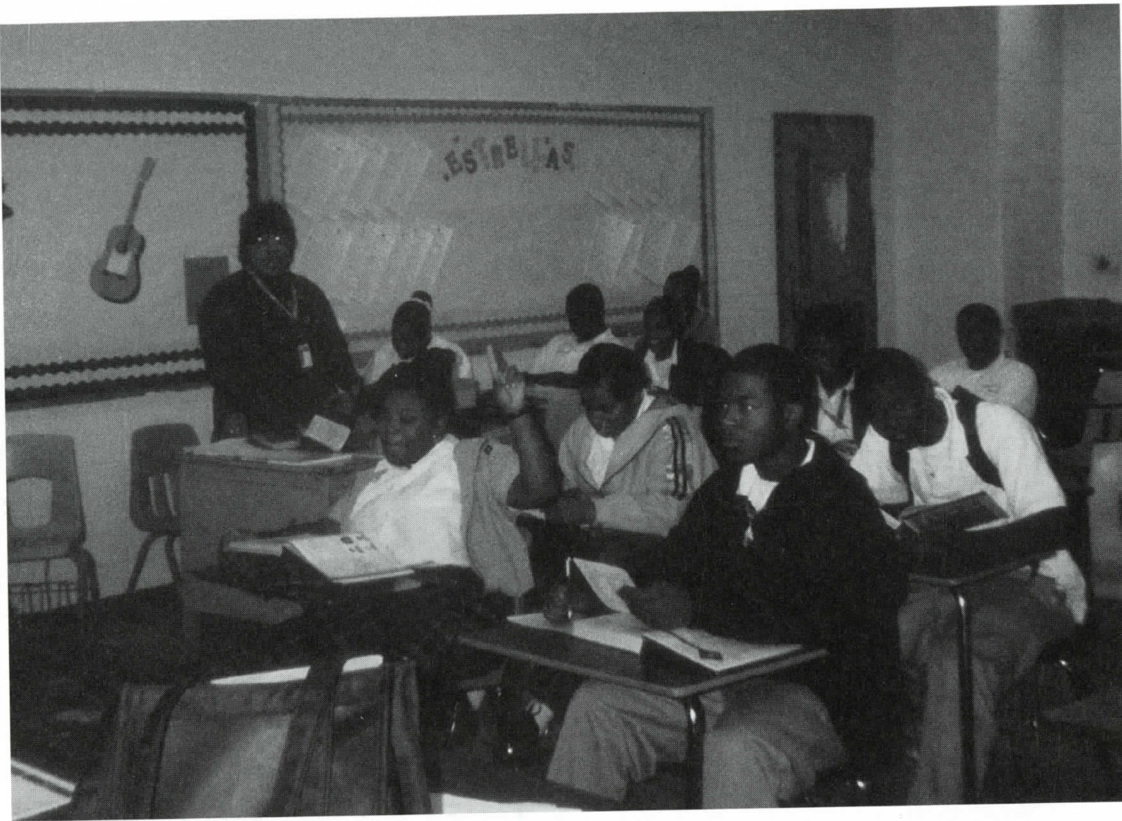

Dillard SpringFest 2000

Party Through The Night

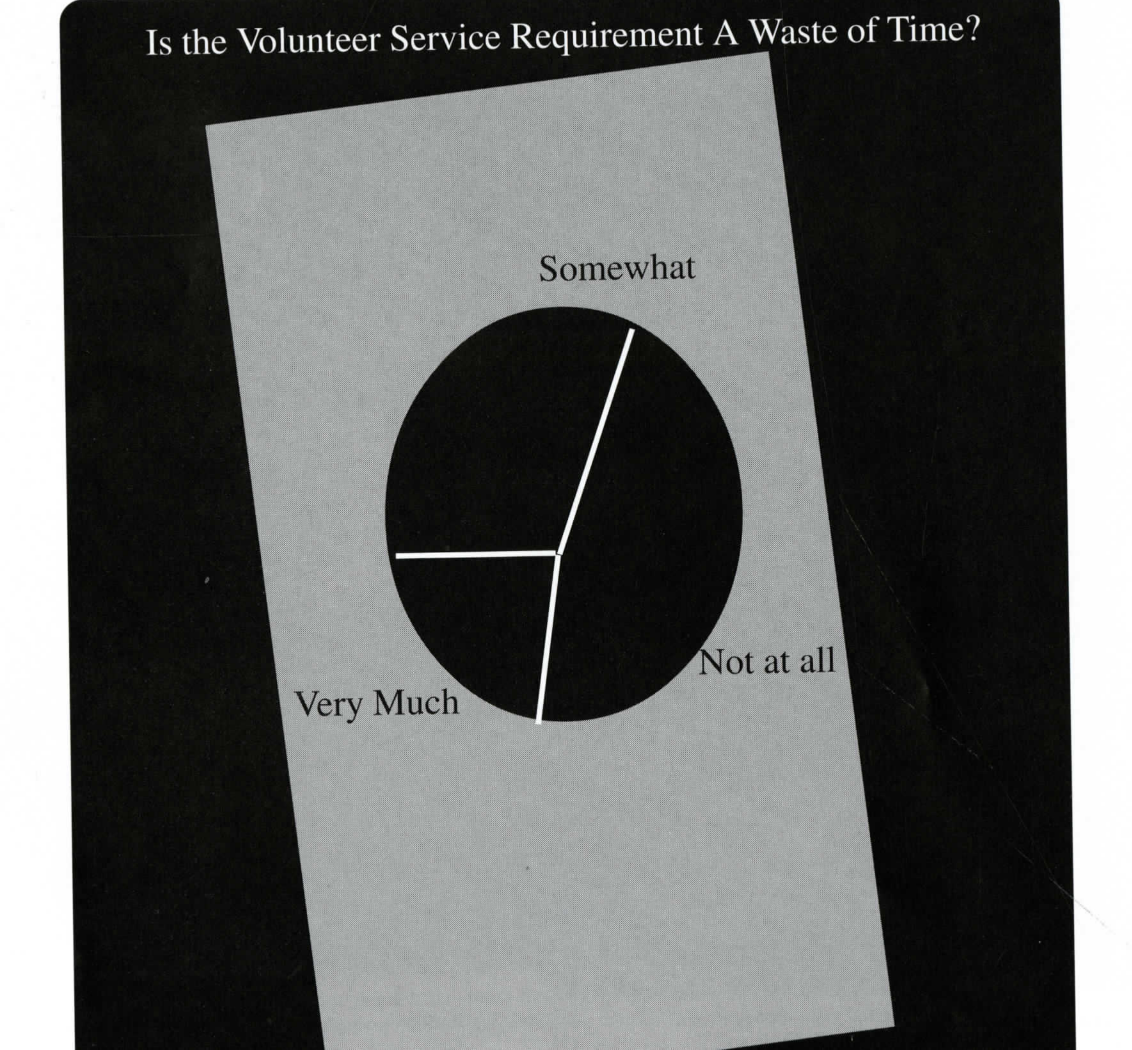

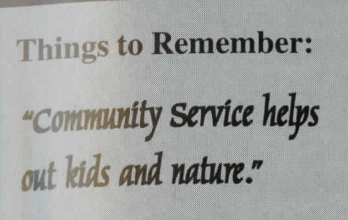

Freshman Marquis Scott entertains the crowd during the comedy show. He was funny and he won the prize money of $50. Watch out he may be the next comedian on BET ComicView.

STUDENT LIFE

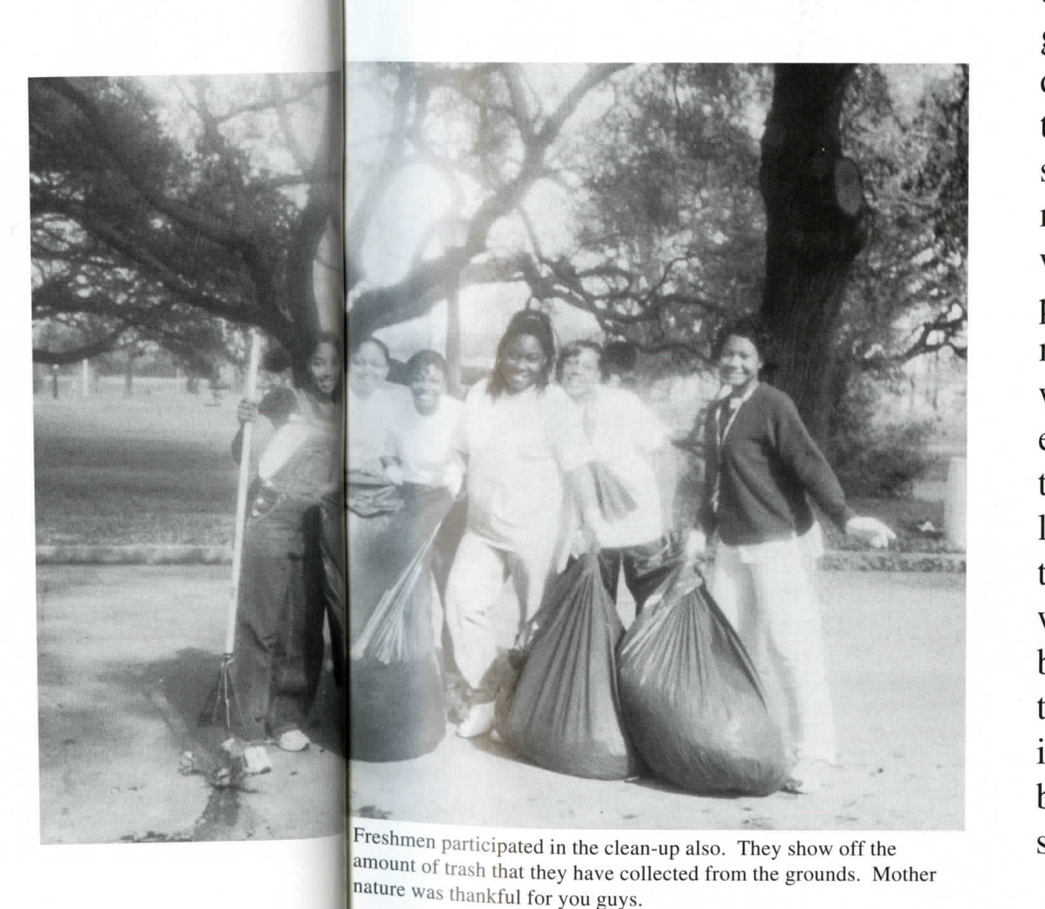

Many of the students attending Dillard enjoy earning community service hours by working with elementary or middle school age children. Tutoring is extremely popular especially within the New Orleans Reads Program in which students select from various elementary schools and attend after school sessions regularly.

The students not only tutor kids, they also can get dirty. The Sophomore class sponsored a City Park clean-up. It was a big success.

Freshmen participated in the clean-up also. They show off the amount of trash that they have collected from the grounds. Mother nature was thankful for you guys.

Dillard Community Service

Up and At It....

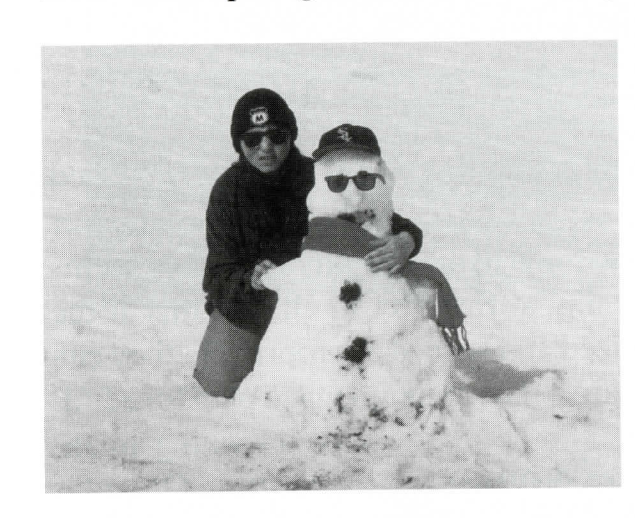

Dillard University is one of the many prestigious universities that requires students to complete volunteer service hours to meet the criteria for graduation. Often overlooked until senior year, the service hours are very important. For most of the Dillard University student body 120 hours seems a little bit overwhelming at first, yet in all actuality if the hours are well organized and spaced appropriately they can be completed in no time. The recommended plan for a full-time four-year student seeking an undergraduate degree from Dillard is the 15-hour per semester plan. By implementing this plan a student can easily earn 15 volunteer hours per each semester and by the time of graduation have completed all required hours. Sound too good to be true? Maybe it is. Truth be told, many students "forget" or simply "do not know" about the requirement until it is virtually too late. Commencement will go on without those who may have been a little absentminded. This problem has been known to occur. To combat the awful misfortune there has recently been talk of a new program where freshmen entering the system will be required or at least encouraged to pursue 30 hours for the first four semesters of their career when the class/work load will most likely be the lightest. By the junior year all volunteer hours will be out of the way. This plan sounds quite effective and less nerve wrecking than jamming all of the hours in at the last minute because of selective amnesia. Whatever the student decides to do about their service hours remains primarily up to the individual. However, like it or not, the criteria will remain because the hours make for very well rounded community service oriented and involved students.

> "I truly benefited from my community service experience"

All around the world in a semester.

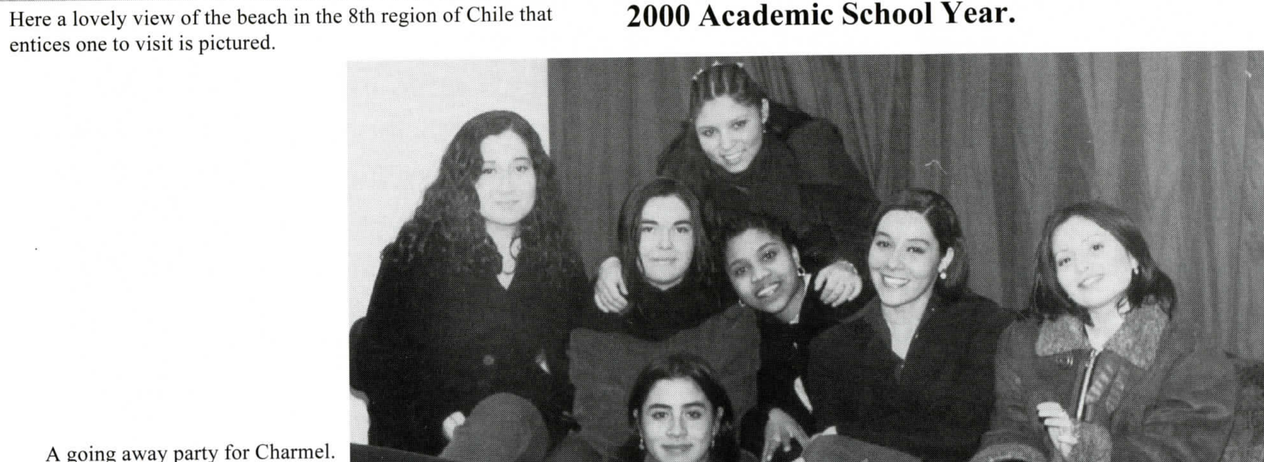

The Experience of Studying Abroad

Studying abroad is an opportunity provided by Dillard University for students to travel to other countries. Interested students are selected and usually stay in the designated country for an entire semester. Studying abroad offers the Dillard student an unforgettable experience. Participating students learn many things about other cultures and ways of life. Graduating Senior Charmel Tillman from St. Louis, Missouri, majoring in Spanish had the privilege to visit the South American country of Chile. Charmel resided in Chile from March until July of 1999. She attended Frontera University where she was the only face of color in the entire crowd. Ms. Tillman was the first Dillard exchange student to study in Chile, as well as the first Frontera University had ever received. "I never really adjusted to being alone in Chile, but it took about two months for me to feel comfortable," recalls Charmel. While in Chile Charmel lived with a native family who spoke no English. There were things there to give little reminders of the United States such as McDonalds and Pizza Hut; yet Charmel insists that she called home everyday. "I learned so much about Chile as well as the United States," says Charmel. "We are so privileged in the U.S., we take a lot for granted." While Charmel was in Chile many protests were going on because of the higher education laws that were being passed concerning money such as loans, grants, and scholarships. Overall, studying abroad can be an excellent experience and chance to learn more about other cultures as well as your own. Other opportunities to study abroad lie in countries including but not limited to Africa, Austria, China, and India. Kenya Price had the opportunity to visit Africa. Candice Richards visited Austria in the Fall semester of the 1999-2000 Academic School Year.

Garrett Morris, a Dillard alumni, shows off his American Express Gold card. He lets them know that "you never leave home without it."

Like mother like son, Grant Hill introduces his mother, Janet Hill to the audience after the presentation. His mother help start the scholarship fund in the name of her late father, Malcolm McDonald, who is a native of New Orleans.

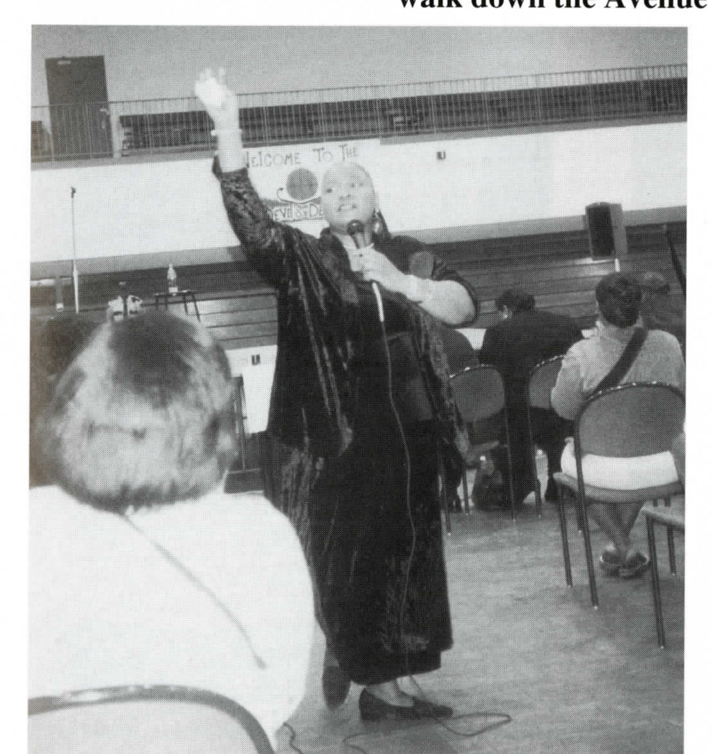

Nikki Giovanni signs autographs for the students and guest. Sophomore Fredericka Banks waits patiently for her book of poetry to be signed.

Break out the camera and the autograph book!

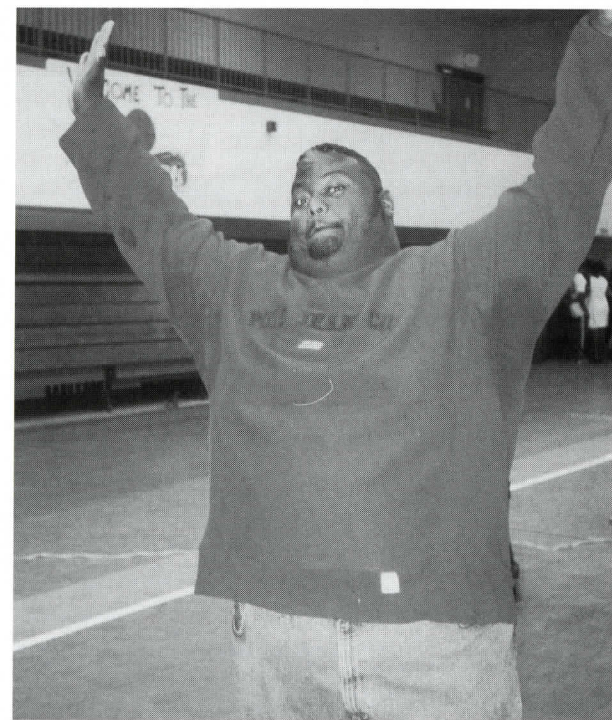

A Campus Full of Famous Visitors

Some students may think that Dillard is strictly business and no play but, there are a few surprises instore every year. This year, students had suprise visits by celebrities. They were really shocked by the prescence of Grant Hill and his family. His wife, Tamia, came with him for the visit. She is an R&B singer and she left all the guys with their mouths open. He awarded two Dillard students scholarships for excellent academic performance. The campus was also blessed with the prescence of Garrett Morris, who is an alumni of Dillard. The famous M&M twins, who are rappers and actors visited the campus. Big Tymer and Herculez are cute and chubby in person. The students enjoyed an evening of poetry by Nikki Giovanni. She left lasting impressions on all the students in attendance with her Tupac tattoo. During Spring Fest 2000, students were entertained by Comicview comedians Lavelle Crawford and Simply Marvelous. The students also had the chance to meet Tom Joyner's son, Tom Joyner, Jr., he invited the students to "party with a purpose" in 2000. This is a campaign to help raise money for scholarships. As you can see school is not always boring, it may also be entertaining. Remember keep your eyes open, you never know when the next star will walk down the Avenue of the Oaks.

Grandma Vivian looks on as Grant and Tamia describes their perfect relationship. They share a laugh after they announced their marriage.

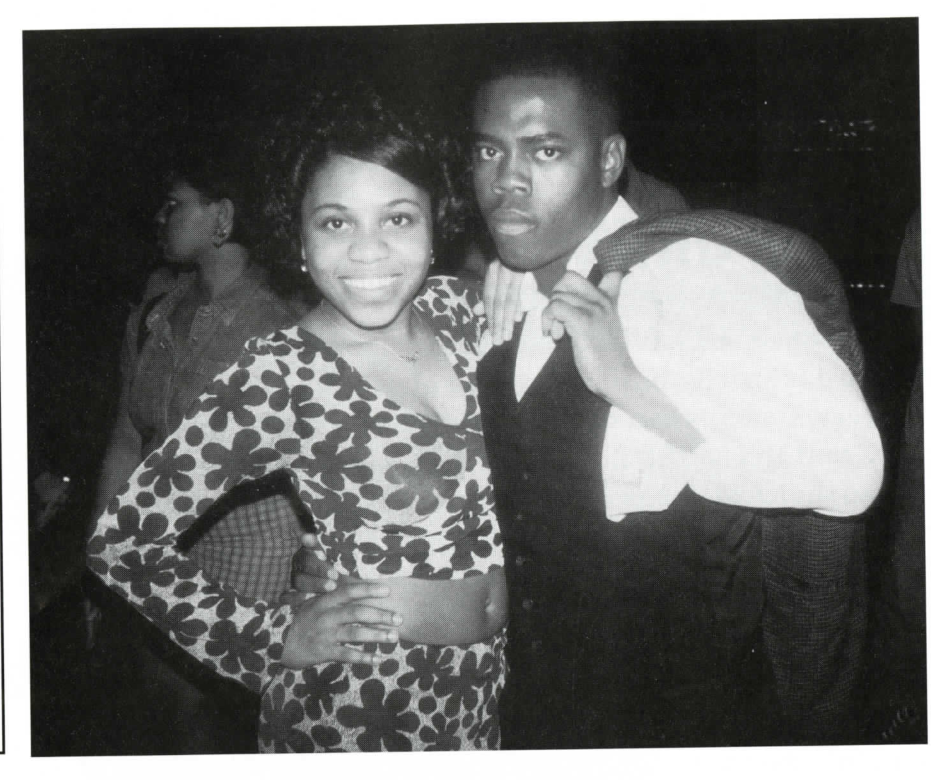

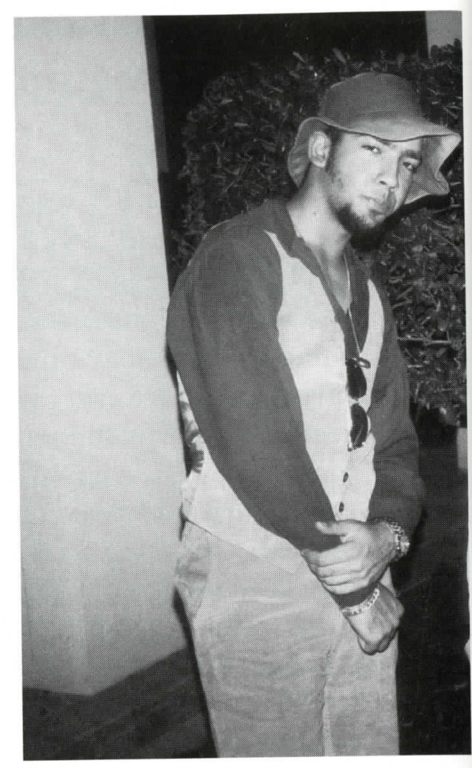

The students were entertained by Simply Marvelous. She had the crowd on edge with her jokes.

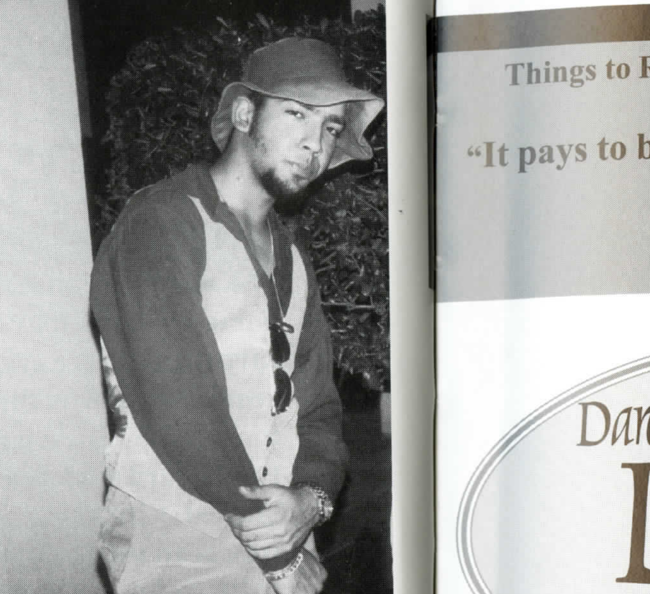

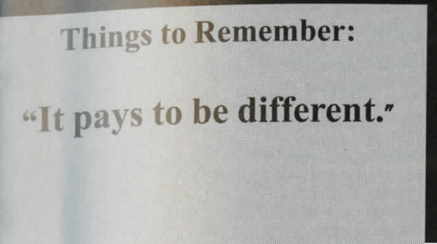

Lavelle Crawford poses for a quick snapshot after his performance. He is hilarious and always does his best on stage.

Dillard students prepare for the walk by stretching. The two is now ready for the mile walk. Stretching helps relax the muscles, Freshman Harry Cass helps out a fellow classmate prepare before they take the track.

President Lomax gives a pep talk to students to prepare them for the mile walk. Ted Thomas says a prayer to help him make it through the walk.

All work and no play can make anyone cranky. Evenings out to eat are the perfect answer for the sometimes overworked but never under-appreciated campus ministry and their great advisor, Rev. Bowman..

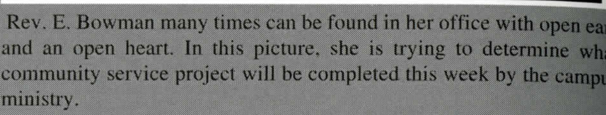

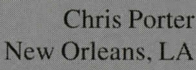

Campus Ministry posing for a brief picture after an afternoon meeting. Their smiles reflect not only a want to be in the picture but a satisfaction in knowing that they are doing a good job on campus and in the community.

Rev. E. Bowman many times can be found in her office with open ears and an open heart. In this picture, she is trying to determine what community service project will be completed this week by the campus ministry.

Dillard University

CAMPUS MINISTRY

Perspectives of Class Chaplains

"Whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus." Colossians 3:17. This verse aptly describes Dillard University's chapel ministry and the drive that fuels their goodwill and dedication to helping others. Under the dynamic leadership of Rev. E. Bowman and the assistance of class chaplains, the chapel ministry in the past couple of years has flourished while carving its niche in the rock of Dillard University. The campus ministry is a multi-tiered organization that consists of a music ministry, an education ministry, a benevolence ministry and a board of trustees. These individuals, and their supporters work hard to ensure that the campus ministry is successful. As a result, chapel service today is no longer just chapel service. It is a celebration. It is a chance to praise god, give thanks for life, and bathe in the glory of goodness.

"When I left home, I was seeking spiritual growth. When I arrived at Dillard I continued that search and found it in the campus ministry."- Jr. Class Chaplain Steve Jubert. Steve encountered more than just spiritual growth while working with the campus ministry, but growth as an individual overall and gives thanks to the innovations of Rev. Bowman, and the spiritual energy of Dillard University. Jubert says, "The ministry is an excellent ministry. There are a lot of learning avenues. This is a ministry where you have a chance to have a part in making the Church. You have a chance to preach, praise and be church leaders as young people. Students are the ones working and putting in long hours. It (working with the ministry) is a great thing and a lesson in leadership and cooperation."

Sophomore Class chaplain, Eugene Herbert echoes many of the same sentiments as his peer Jubert. Herbert became involved in the ministry as a result of becoming more mindful of his calling into the preaching ministry and because of his fascination with Rev. Bowman as a renowned theologian and academician. In fact, Herbert accompanied Bowman at the beginning of the fall semester to a United Church of Christ conference in Puerto Rico concerning multiculturalism in the church. Herbert credits the vigor of campus ministry in part to its ability to expose students to different experiences as well as its ability to allow students to work with great people such as Renita Weems and Jeremiah Wright.

Jasmin Vann, Fr. Class Chaplain appreciates the accessibility of the chapel ministry to all. "A good job is done keeping an open door policy. People don't feel threatened to participate…A lot of people are away from home and need the church as a part of their lives."

Perhaps, Senior Class Chaplain, Monique Bell offers the most perspective on the chapel ministry as she has seen it grow from what it was in 1996 to what it is today. " I have watched the campus ministry grow tremendously in the past three years. The last two classes have a strong Christian movement and it will never die because so many people are involved." Bell notes however that "….the chapel ministry can only help to organize the movement (religious) but it takes the effort of each individual class to keep the movement going" Bell remarks that the ministry has grown because students see the church as a "method of keeping them on track in laying out the plans for their lives.

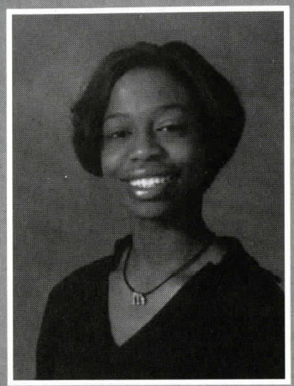

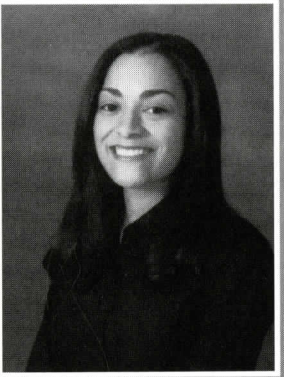

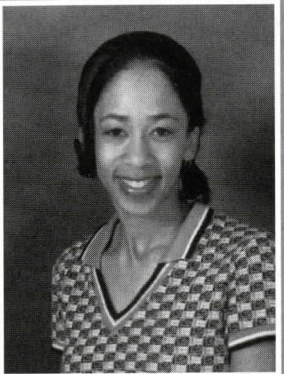

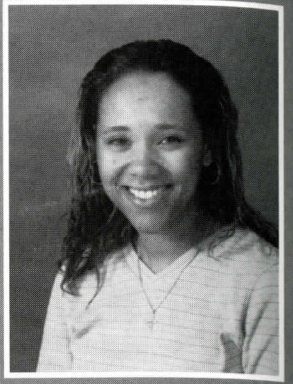

The campus ministry is a central part of campus life and the community. It is an organ that serves all and serves all well. May it continue to flourish and bring new life into all that it touches.

This sophomore spotlight is Tahiarah Gettis from Louisville, KY, where she attended the University of Kentucky last year. Her major is community health education/physicians assistant. Tahiarah decided to attend Dillard because she wanted to get the black college experience by attending an HBCU. When asked how she liked DU so far, she said, "I thought the campus was unique in structure and settings. It provides enclosed surroundings which make transition from class to class easier." Although she is not involved in any campus activities now, she hopes to join more centered around her major as the year progresses. "At first I wasn't really concerned much with the social life here at DU," replied Tahiarah, "I just wanted to know who my roommate was. Now that I am settled in I can get involved in more activities."

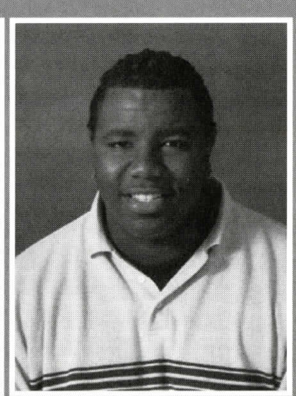

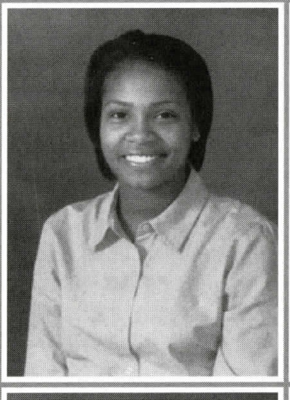

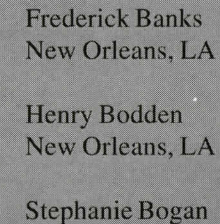

Jeffrey Jefferson hails from Oklahoma City, OK and is a sophomore majoring in criminal justice and sociology. Jeff says he chose his major because he feels, "in order to know the criminal mind, one must have been a criminal…I have been a criminal." Although Jeff's first year here was rather rough, by the grace of God and the good will of his parents, he was able to return to DU to continue his education. Jeff is actively involved in the social life at DU. Jeff has been on the Student Arts and Activities committee for two years and has played Intramural sports. Aside from his activities, he likes to play b-ball, pool, go to Café Noir, and basically any function where D.J Raj will be also. Jeff is not all fun and games, though. When he is not playing ball, you can find Jeff in the library or the Chateau diligently studying. "I would like to make my parents proud of me, so I work hard to get good grades. I like Dillard and would like to graduate from here in 2002," said Jeff. You don't have to look hard to find Jeff, he can be seen on the benches of the Avenue of the Oaks with his cousin Leo Christophe, friends Wesley Dean, Charles Jones, Enrique Jackson, the 12-play clique, and the C-2-1 clique.

Campus Buildings

Point of view

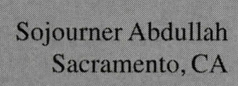

With all the hustle and bustle of being a college student, freshman Genevieve Jesse has still managed to remain focus. From Oakland, California, Jesse has come to Dillard with one goal in mind, being successful. "I decided to come to Dillard because of its excellent theatre department," Jesse said. "When I first came down and saw the school, I knew Dillard was right place for me." The Speech Communication and Theatre major made her first debut at Dillard in 'The Trial of One Short-Sighted Black Woman vs. Mammy Louise and Safretta Mae.' Jesse played the role as Mammy. Though Jesse dislikes a few things about Dillard, in the most part she likes the university as a whole. " I like that Dillard is small and concentrated," Jesse said. "The classes are challenging, but the one-on one attention I get from my teachers helps me through the rough parts."

Freshman Marcus Bivens decided to come to Dillard because of the small and friendly atmosphere. Since the first day of registration, Bivens has saw the campus as a home away from home. "Dillard feels like another home, the people here are real and down to earth," said Bivens. The Mass Communications major from Stockton, California came to Dillard with plans of someday producing his own radio show. Bivens felt that Dillard's Mass Communications department would best prepare him for his goals. "I know for sure I will be at Dillard all four years," Bivens said. "I hope to graduate Summa Cum Laude or even better." Although, Bivens is focused on his schoolwork, he still manages to remain a active member in The African American Males organization. "At Dillard, I have had the opportunity to get involved in volunteering and do so many other things," Bivens said. "I am glad I came here."

SERVICE FOR MANKIND

SGA

DILLARD UNIVERSITY
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA 70122

OFFICE OF THE STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

On behalf of the elected members of the 1999-2000 administration of the Student Government Association, it is my pleasure to welcome back the upperclassmen of Dillard and greet all new students for the first time, as well as encourage the new SGA administration.

As you embark on this year and as you flip through the pages of this yearbook, I am certain that memories of yesterday will flood your mind. The experiences that we have shared as a student body cannot be fully expressed in mere words. The many battles fought in the offices of Rosenwald, the struggle for changes that seemed too little, too late, and the fight to have our voice heard, all stood as testimony of our passion as a new generation of Dillardites. Despite many obstacles from our own corners of the world, we seemed to be able to find a common ground in our innate love of Fair Dillard, and our efforts to make it even better.

The role of the SGA has traditionally been to be the voice of the student body. With our administration we hoped to bring power to that voice by supporting our peers and empowering them to stand up and be heard. It is important, however, that the student body recognizes that their voice may only be heard if they utilize the power which they have. As you set your feet on new ground this year and begin to make new memories, remember the work that we have all done this past year. Remember that SGA is not one single person...but the student body is the SGA...and you have a voice.

All great revolutions start with an idea. The idea has been conceived. The plans have been laid. Gather yourselves and fall into action.

Be bright, be passionate, be steadfast, BE A VOICE...be the beginning of a new and Fairer Dillard.

God's Blessings...

With Love and Admiration,

DU Donor's Ethical Gray Area

By Amber Bennett

Julius Rosenwald, the namesake for Dillard University's academic and administration building, is known for his contributions to many historically black colleges and universities. However, Rosenwald also contributed to the Tuskegee Syphilis Experiment, which left hundreds of African-Americans with syphilis, although penicillin, which cures the disease, was available.

Parking Woes

At Times, Space is Hard to Find

By Matthew Broussard

Dillard students and faculty spend 10 to 15 minutes everyday searching for parking spaces.

"Progress is being made," said Chief Herbert McGee Jr., head of the Campus Safety Dept. "Within the last year we have built two new parking lots. One lot was completed early last year

DU Welcomes New Associate Vice-President of Academic Affairs

By Michele Stamps
Copy Editor

Recognizing that he is yet "a work in progress," Dr. Elfred Anthony Pinkard, new associate vice-president of academic affairs, looks forward to learning not only from the faculty and administration of Dillard, but he especially looks forward to learning from the students.

Pinkard has had years of experience in the classroom and feels certain that these experiences will help in his academic leadership. However, he stresses that experience in the classroom is not a necessary indication of ones ability to produce as an academic leader tutional research for the past four years, Pinkard said, "I'm glad to be back in contact with the students!" This position will not only allow him the opportunity to make administrative decisions on academics at Dillard but Pinkard will again enter the classroom.

In an effort to ensure that he lends to the advancement of students at Dillard, Pinkard has plans to teach a course in African American Institutional Development. Through this course he wishes to give students a sense of why black colleges were instated and the process by which to maintain them.

Through an emotional testimony, Pinkard spoke of the need for students to look be-

Dillard University students filled Cook Center Auditorium Monday in the hopes of catching a glimpse of a famous NBA basketball player. The purpose of the visit was not to pitch a soft drink or a new athletic shoe, but to promote excellence, education, scholarship and the spirit of giving back.

Two Deaths Hit Home

Faculty, staff, students and loved ones are mourning the death of two members of the Dillard family. Thomas E. Crittenden, Jr., a former associate professor of business administration and economics at Dillard University, and Rodney Brantley, manager of Dillard's Xerox center, died last week.

Happy graduates march down the Rosa Freeman Keller Avenue of the Oaks as the commencement ceremony begins. This is the final stage at Dillard to walk down the "Avenue of the Oaks."

This is a great celebration of two families. Shaniece Bell and Raphael Bickham celebrate together with family members after commencement. The Avenue of Oaks looks like a big family reunion that was in the making for four years.

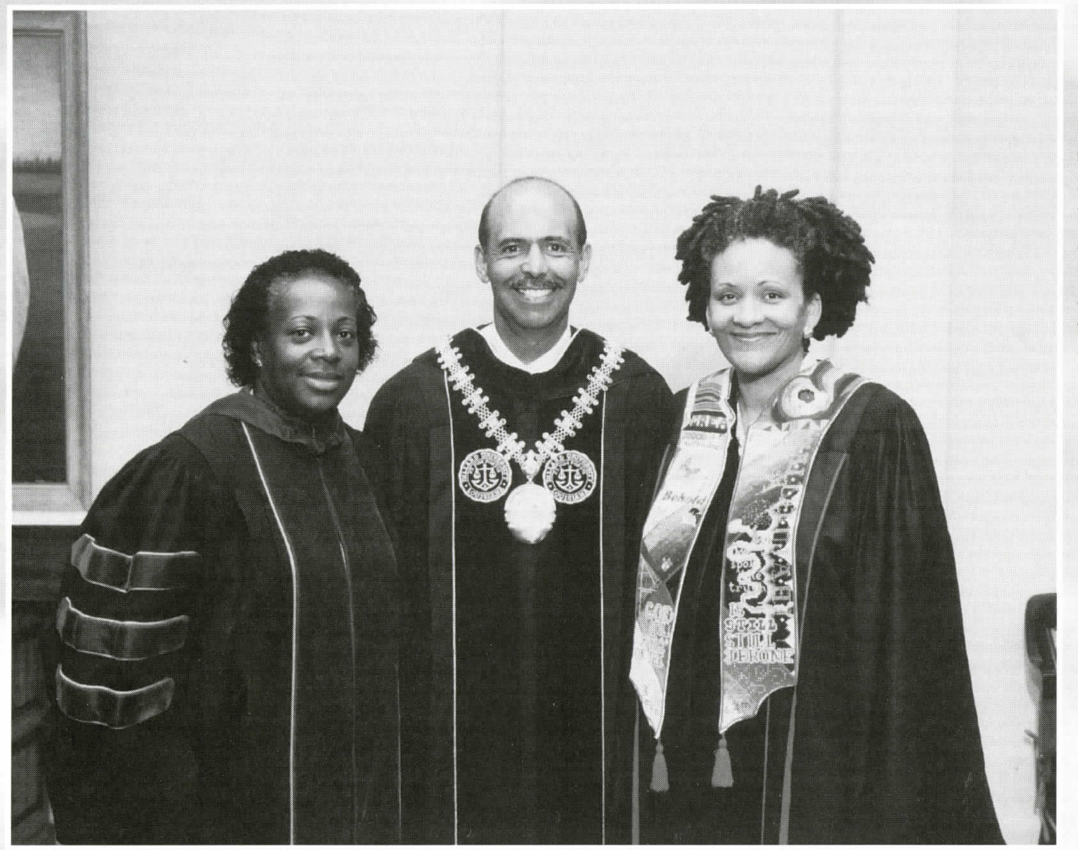

Top graduates--John Abney, monique Robinson and Rose-Ann Blenman share a special moment before the ceremony. Abney is the top male graduate and Robinson is the salutatorian. Blenman is the class of 2000 valedictorian. This is a great group of graduates. Congratulations!!!!!!

Dr. Lomax poses for a photo with Carolyn Ann Knight, academic director and assistant professor of Homelitics at the International Theological Center in Atlanta, and Reverend Gail Bowman. Knight gave the graduating class of 2000 a message for them to remember throughout their lives. She gave this wonderful speech for Baccalaureate.

Commencement is not only a time to bid farewell to the graduates, but to reminisce on the old times. Faculty members Dr. Gloria Wade Gayles and Gary Hyatt along with board of trustees member Dr. Rudolph Byrd and Dr. Lomax help graduates celebrate this special moment.

A millennium reunion. Dr. Lomax is joined by Dr. Samuel Dubois Cook, former president of Dillard University. They join the chairman of the board of trustees, Charles Ferguson. This was a great reunion of the present and past presidents.

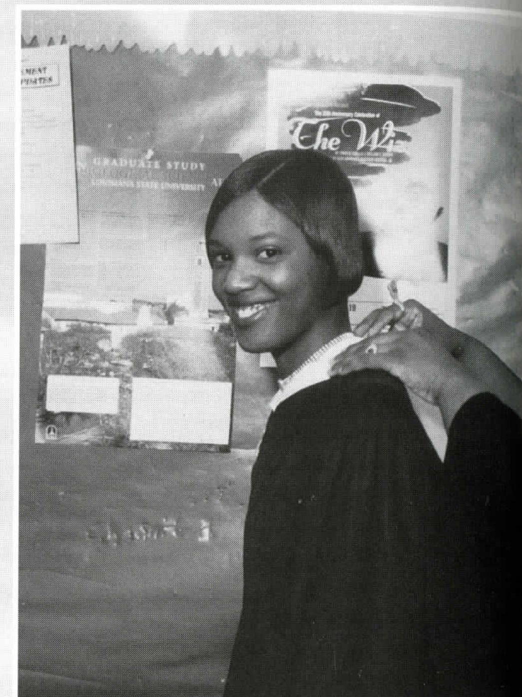

How was Dillard 50 Years ago? Well these Golden graduates could answer that question. They had the privilege to march with the class of 2000. They are joined by Dr. David Organ, who is thrilled to be seated next to these five gradutes.

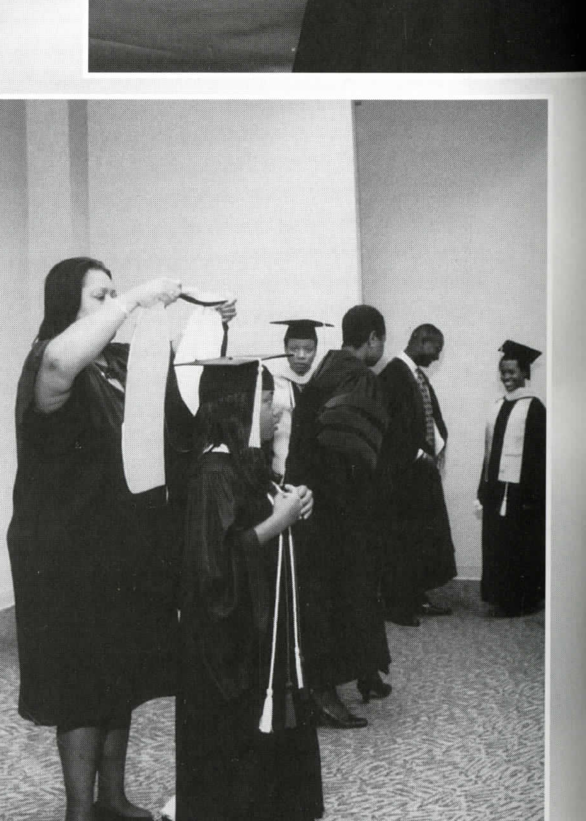

Celebrate 50 Years!

These two graduates help each other prepare for one of the most important events in their life. Everyone must look their best, when they receive their degree. The future looks bright for both of them. Good Luck!!!!

These two graduates met at Dillard, now they are about to part. Many graduates shed tears of sadness and some of joy. After graduation, many wonder when is the next time they'll meet again.

Educators at Work in the: Division of Education

The Division of Education prepares students for elementary or secondary school teaching professional. Today there is a shortage of educators in the school system. The Education division gives students the opportunity to major in one of six academic areas. These areas include elementary education, special education, health and physcal education, secondary education and psycology. Students have the ability to teach students in the New Orleans Public School system.

Students are given the option to join the LAESP organization. This program gives students opportunities to interact with students in nearby schools. This organization raise money to help these students.

The education program satisfy the certification requirements of the Louisiana State Department of Education. The basic curriculum components in the Teacher education Program are General Education, Professional Education and Specialized Education.

Outstanding Students and the Media Center for the Division of Natural Sciences

The Division of Natural Sciences makes up a large population of majors at Dillard University. The Divisions majors include Biology, Chemistry, Computer Science, Mathematics, Physics, and Public Health. Students in the Division of Natural Sciences are involved in various programs throughout the academic school year relating to their majors. For some programs, the summer may be no exception. Mr. L. Williams, a Biology professor, says that he has two students, Arian Nedd and Natalee Wahsington, who have participated in the summer research project. The project involves collecting and studying plants from the natural environment. They identify the plants and place them into categories accordingly. This project was so successful that it has become on-going and the first semester researcher is Ibi-yinka Tolliver.

In addition to these programs, the Media Center was also a center for learning more about a particular area of study. It was like a library for the Natural Sciences. The Media Center is longer a part of the Division of Natural Sciences. When renovations were done in Stern Hall, there was no longer any room for the Media Center. Faculty and students alike are shocked and disappointed about this reality. The Media Center contained audiovisuals, film, CD ROMs, and many of the books that could not be found in the library to help with such things as the MCAT. The Center has now become a Computer lab, which has increased in size and the number of computers. The Computer Lab Supervisor, Mrs. E. Chapital, who was formerly associated with the Media Center, says that many people would like to see the Media Center come back, however, no provisions have been made to do so.

Setting New Standards: The Division of Social Sciences in Action.

Dillard University's Division of Social Sciences has gotten a new attitude for the 1999-2000 fall/spring semesters. With an expanded African World Studies Division to a new division chairperson exciting changes has occurred in The Division of Social Sciences. With these new changes and further advancements The Division of Social Sciences hopes to encourage more Dillard University Students to become Social Science Majors.

The Goals of The Division of Social Sciences is to " offer a high level of student involvement and intellectual development" (Dillard University 1999-2000 catalog pg. 144) in the areas of history, political science, sociology, criminal justice, social welfare, urban studies, public policy and African world studies. "Students are exposed to both traditional and contemporary theoretical principles and research methodologies within their chosen disciplines."(Dillard University 1999-2000 catalog pg. 144). Also The Division of Social Sciences also wants to encourage students with social science majors in some cases to take double majors to enhance their credentials for graduate and professional school.

One of the ways Dr. Marshall Stevenson hopes to encourage more students here at Dillard University to become social science majors is to have a division career fair. "Students simply don't know their options" states Dr. Stevenson. The Division of Social Sciences also wants to form educational programs to help raise student competence beyond the junior proficiency test all Dillard University students take before they are allowed to graduate.

The Division of Social Sciences' professors are also taking steps to keep Dillard University students aware of social issues that affect them. In the fall 1999 semester Dr. Alan K. Colon gave an insightful view of hazing that occurs in African American fraternities and sororities. Also Dr. Gary M. Clark has offered Dillard University students the opportunity to gain community service hours for campaign work, as well opened membership to the College Republican club. Also Dr. Nchor B. Okorn has represented Dillard University as an ambassador for the many guest The Division of Social Sciences has had from Africa and local campaign representatives from New Orleans. Dr. Okorn has also in his lectures encouraged Dillard University political science majors to join the political science club.

With this new refreshed attitude and ideas The Division of Social Sciences hopes to prepare Dillard University students to be competitors in the new millennium.

Reflections

Dillard University has accomplished another school year. This school year was marked with triumph and sorrow. The many changes on campus was a joy for the students. We had a phenomenal Class of 2000. Best Wishes! There were administration additons and changes to the buildings. We suffered the loss of two freshmen, as a result of violence. During these sad times students came together to pray for a better future for our Dillard family. We also lost a friend, Mr. Rodney, the Xerox Center manager. He was a big help to students and administration. We gained new friends and we lost old friends. However, we still pull together to have a successful 1999-2000 year.

The 1999-2000 Le Diable Bleu yearbook is a great accomplishment in my life. When I look at this book, I will remember the hard-work and time that I dedicated to complete this book over the summer. I had a lot of help from my friends and family members. The first person that I would like to thank is my Mother, for all her help and encouragement. I don't think that I would have completed the book without you. Thank you very much and I love you! Derrick thanks very much for the letters and inspiration that you have given me in order to complete this yearbook. I love you also Big Cousin!

To April Dennis, thanks for the help this summer. You were a big help and I hope everyone enjoy your fashion page. I know that we both had our hands full this summer but, you still manage to share a little time toward the yearbook. Tan, Toki and Mia, thanks for being great friends. We had many good times together, especially our weekend in Baton Rouge. Toki and Tan, I want to see you represent in next year's book. Amy and Kimaka, I think of you both as my big sisters. I'm so happy that we became great friends. Thanks for the meals and the good times at 3632.

To Erica Bass, you were a great mentor. You taught me everything that I need to know about the yearbook. I know you believed that I could produce a quality yearbook. Thanks for the head-start to a great yearbook. Congratulations for being a Y2K graduate. Good Luck in the future!

To all my sorors of the Beta Upsilon Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc., thanks for all the love and support that you have showed me to get through the completion of this yearbook. Ayneka Bruno, I hope that you are enjoying your life after Dillard. Thanks for the numerous rides to Lafayette. I miss you and good luck with your new job. Tonya Major thanks for everything and best wishes for the 2000-2001 school year.

Good Luck with all your future plans. Jasmin Vann, thanks for the wonderful organization pictures. I know you had a lot of problems with dates & times but, you did a great job. I hope you had a great summer. Krystal Airs and Tiffany Bradford thanks for your contributions and pictures. Bonjour "Jacques!" James Garland, you were there to give me great ideas and help out in anyway possible. We had great times in French. Thanks!*

Mr. Hopkins, thanks for everything. You went beyond the call of duty to make sure that I was able to do a great job. I don't know how I would have made it without your words of encouragement. Missy, thanks for the time you spent on the phone helping me when I really needed it. Mrs. Aleta Barnes and Mrs. Robertson, thanks for all your help this summer. I really appreciated the help. Dean Bartley thanks for fighting for our budget to have a yearbook this year, you were a great advisor.*

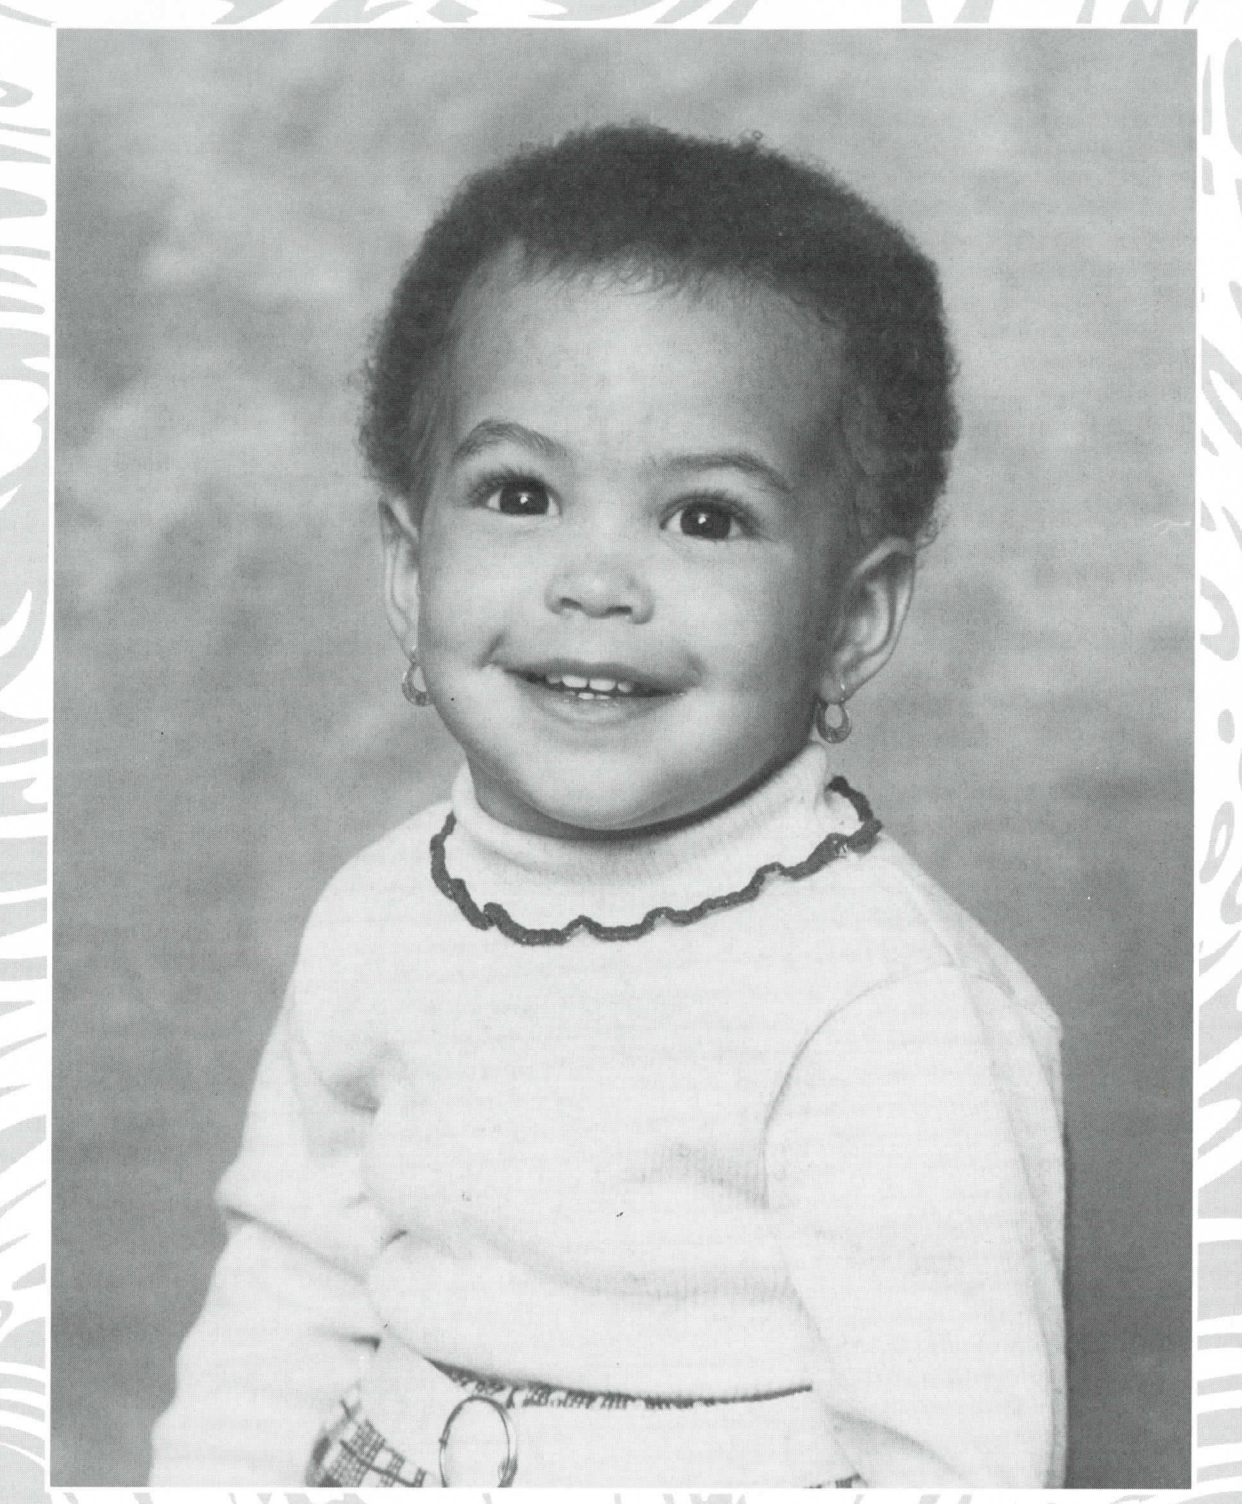

*Dillard is a very diverse university. This was the reason for the theme of this issue of Le Diable Bleu. Although everyone is different, we still manage to keep a family atmosphere here at Dillard University, home of the Blue Devils.

Finally, I would like to thank all my friends and family in Lafayette that believed in me and supported me through all those hard times this summer. I was stressed out and tired, I would just like to thank all of you for dealing with my mood swings. I hope that everyone likes this yearbook and with the help of God, I hope that next year's book will be a greater success.

Once again Thanks to everyone,
